

REGULARS MAY BE USED TO INSURE MAIL MOVEMENTS

HISTORY OF PULLMAN STRIKE CITED AS PRECEDENT.

MAY RUN TRAINS Could Not Compel Strikers to Work, However; Ready for Emergency.

By DAVID LAWRENCE. Copyright, 1922, by The Janesville Gazette.

Washington.—Federal troops may have to be used by the government to support the various marshals and deputies who have been appointed to see that the mails are protected and interstate commerce is not interrupted.

Officials of the department of justice, searching precedents Tuesday, admitted a course of procedure similar to that followed by President Cleveland and Attorney General Olney in the famous Pullman strike of 1894 was not unlikely if marshals were unable to secure respect for authority.

The appointment of United States marshals under the strike zone and setting mail trains are not intended as the first step. It was taken by the department of justice on the broad ground that the federal statutes make it the duty of the department of justice to see to it that there is no combination of any kind "in restraint of trade."

Regulars Used in 1894.

This is the language of the interstate commerce act of July 1890 and in 1894 the marshals and deputy marshals found themselves unable to cope with disorders and called upon the war department for support. Two regiments entered Chicago and this brought an end to interference with interstate commerce.

President Harding may find himself in the same position as Mr. Cleveland. Conferences thus far have led to a determination to use the full force of the federal government to secure obedience to the federal laws. Severe penalties are provided for the punishment of anyone who contributes in any way to the interference with the journeys of mail trains or the destruction of lives or private property enroute from state to state. In connection with the appointment during the last twenty-four hours of marshals and deputies, the following statute is cited by officials of the department of justice, being section 785.

"The marshals and their deputies shall have in each state the same powers in executing the laws of the United States as sheriffs at their deputes in such state may have by law in executing the laws thereof."

Power Explained.

Still further explanation of the power of the chief executive is given in the Neagle case by a decision of

He stated that as warning was given him of defective brakes on the machine and as a consequence he wrecked it. Ludden claimed that no permission was given the restaurant man to operate the machine.

WEATHER DELAYS RINGOLD PAVING

More Sunshine Needed Before Contractors May Start Pouring.

Continued rains of the past four days have put the excavated section of Ringold street in a condition that the Hayes-Pontius-Hayes company has been prevented from starting to lay the three blocks of reinforced concrete paving from South Third street to Racine street. Plans had been made to begin pouring concrete Monday.

The sub-grade is so wet now that it will take a day or more of sunshine to make paving work possible. It is hoped to get help by the latter part of this month for paving the balance of Ringold street as far north as Russet Avenue. The final hearing of property owners on this improvement is set for July 14 at 2 p.m.

Over in Blackhawk district the residents are jubilant over the completion of paving. After three days of rambling through miles of varying depths and bounding over boulders of all sizes and descriptions Blackhawk people are happy with the new improvements. Already 11 of the 12 blocks laid have been opened to traffic. The only block still closed is on Fremont street from Carrington to Sharon.

The road committee of Oak Hill Cemetery association is planning to open bids July 20 for 1,700 feet of concrete paving job in the cemetery. The city engineering department is proceeding with plans for additional paving this year in the form of asphalt-macadam on North First street, from Buff to Wisconsin.

GANFIELD IN CITY

ON TOUR OF STATE

Assails His Opponent, LaFollette, in Talks in County.

W. A. Ganfield, candidate for the republican nomination for United States senator, La Follette, accompanied by Riley S. Young, campaign candidate for lieutenant governor, passed through Janesville on Wednesday, on the second day of a tour, which will carry Ganfield through the entire state.

Ganfield was scheduled Wednesday to visit Oxfordville, Brodhead, Monroe, Darlington, Brownfield, South Wayne, and Gratot. On Thursday his schedule includes Livingston, Pennimire, Boscobel and Prairie du Chien.

Ganfield declared that the outstanding issues of the campaign revolve around the question of whether Wisconsin wants to be represented in Washington by a real progressive, republicans or by a radical who is masquerading under the republican label.

Criticism of La Follette. — In his address Ganfield is also criticizing La Follette for advocating an amendment to the constitution which would permit congress to override the Supreme court.

"There is not a single sacred right guaranteed us under the constitution which would be safe and inviolable if this proposal of the senior senator is carried," Ganfield declared. "Our entire system of government would be changed and it would be possible for congress to 'repeal' the eighteenth and nineteenth amendments without a vote of the people."

Opposes Class Discretions. — Ganfield declared he has always been a member of the progressive wing of the republican party and has voted for La Follette in the past.

"What I am most unhappy about is that my opponent has given him self over so completely to the preachers of the doctrines of class antagonism and discontent," Mr. Ganfield said. "I believe that cooperation, sympathy and understanding will accomplish more than hate, anger and discontent."

Ganfield declared La Follette has become "the candidate of the Non-Partisan League and the socialist party which endorsed him at its state convention." He said the senior senator no longer has a place among real republicans.

"You'll never find the name of Ganfield or Victor L. Berger on the same ticket," Ganfield said.

Large attendance at Country Club

By far the largest attendance of the season marked the club's summer and entertainment at the Country club Tuesday night. E. H. Peterson had charge of the program, the feature of which was a wedding traveler.

An impromptu altar was erected in the west end of the clubroom and the wedding party entered from the east end of the porch. Ropes were stretched from one end of the room to the other and as the party approached Lohengrin's wedding march was played by Mrs. Maurice L.

Welwick.

The bride smaid. Miss D. Manted

Arthur Johnson, was dressed in pink and white, and he carried a large arm bouquet of sun flowers.

Miss Gladys Purse, the bride, John

Haukerson, wore a white gown with a lace curtain train, a veil arranged into a cornet which crowned her beautifully marcelled hair of hair,

she carried a shower bouquet of poppies. The bridegroom, O. U. Bond

Rex Jacobs, walked with a surgical air arrayed in the conventional black suit, blue tie and a silk hat. M.

T. Purdy, D. Holmes, father of the bride, gave her away. He was attended by her Dutch Uncle, V.

Gates, George E. King, who was comspicious with a humped back and displaying a three ball pawn shop air about him. I. M. Sorry, Cut

Blodgett, was best man. He looked typical of his name. G. White, E. H.

Peterson, was ring bearer. He entered with a whiz wheeling a wedding ring. He wore a red coat, a huge tie and short breeches and was wreathed in smiles. J. Hawken, the vicar of the pews, Maurice Welwick, read the marriage service in a high pitched voice, which seemed to indicate the heavy responsibility which he had undertaken in uniting the couple.

Following the wedding ceremony of the party left for the basement of the clubhouse.

Mrs. Carrie Jacobs Bond was present and favored the audience with two of her songs, "The Hills of You" and "Home Sweet Home." Both of which were written while Mrs. Bond was abroad. The music for this song has been composed since her arrival in Janesville. It will be published later.

Mrs. Bond expressed her joy at being among old friends again.

A comedy movie "Lessons in Love" featuring Constance Talmadge was shown. This film was loaned by James Zanar, the machine belonging to the Jefferson school, and operated by Dick Sutherland.

The regular club dinner was served at 8:30 with Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Jenulis in charge. They were assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Weirick, and Mrs. Frank Blodgett, the Misses Caroline and Stoyl Richardson, Robert Carie and William Korst.

Open
Sesame"

Hats off to the California miss who earned the title of the "howdy girl," by launching a "let's speak" campaign. That old-time spirit of greater friendliness, neighborly interest is something worth keeping alive. There's a natural feeling of friendliness in all of us? Why not give it free expression?

Let the cynics sneer "provincial" if they choose—that's only a pose. The spirit of CORDIALITY is too valuable a thing to be suppressed just because we live in a busy age. The pleasant greeting is often the "open sesame" to treasures never discovered by those who stifle their fine human impulses under the acquired habit of indifference.

Foreman Turned, Feathered

Disorder occurred at Chicago, Milwaukee, Sayre, Pa., Orville, and Dennison, Tex., while at Rockhouse, Ill., Bert Dickson, a round house foreman for the Chicago & G. Blod, president of the road, was tarred and feathered by a mixed band.

At New Franklin and State No. and Parsons, Kan., where troops were on duty, remained comparatively quiet following several hectic days.

The situation at Bloomington, Ill., remained tense, with troops holding the yards and shops. Frequent shootings and the general hostile attitude of strikers and large numbers of sympathizers kept National guardsmen in constant vigilance.

Meanwhile city and county authorities were attempting to reestablish civil government.

Protest Troops' Presence

Engineers, firemen, trainmen and conductors announced they would refuse to enter the Alton yards at Bloomington to take out trains as long as machine guns bristled in the shops. They voted to operate only mail trains unless the trains were delivered to them outside the shop district during the envelopment of the troops in the yards.

Along industrial developments of the last few hours was the announcement by D. W. Helt, president of the executive board of the Farm Bureau, that no strike would be called, and the failure of clerks, station employees and freight handlers on the Norfolk and Western to respond to an official authorization of a strike.

The B. & O. and the Erie sent some of their rolling stock to outside shops for repair. Fifty-four trains were arranged by the N.W.B.

A worker's Home Stopped

A crowd of men, women and children stoned the home of Samuel Thompson, a Santa Fe employee in Chicago. Thompson was working at Corwith, Ill., and his wife was home alone when the attack was made. Police dispersed the mob. Neither Mr. Jewell nor Chairman Hooper of the labor board indicated a tendency to yield much ground.

At the next meeting of the executive board of the Farm Bureau all Rock county bankers will be called in for a conference.

Farmers at the meeting declared that there would be a big turn out for the Rock county farm tour to be held from Janesville Thursday in case field work could be arranged.

Wet weather has prevented the harvesting of the hay crops and hay cutting will have to be rushed in time for the cutting of other grain crops.

The tour convoy will leave Janesville from in front of the Court House park promptly at 8:45 a.m. for the tour of the meat packing and western section of the country visiting 14 farms. The state officials and university men going on the trip will arrive in Janesville at 3:30 o'clock.

The Young Ladies' Missionary

club of the Congregational church will leave Saturday for a week's outing at Lake Kegonsa.

Nearly Through
With Pea Crop

That the pea crop this year is 50 percent under normal was the statement made Tuesday by Claudio E. Aiken of the P. Hohenadel Jr. Canning company.

Mr. Aiken said about 600 acres of pea were canned during the season and that although the quality was excellent the yield per acre was about half of normal. He attributes the decrease to the lack of rain.

The pea canning season is practically completed, according to Mr. Aiken. A small amount of work remains to be completed yet, but is expected to be finished Thursday the last of the crop will be canned. Work will then be started in preparation for the corn season which will open around the first of August and continue about a month. The corn yield this year is expected to be normal.

CITY AND COUNTY
MUST COOPERATE

Meet With Equal Rights, Urges

J. A. Craig at R. B.
Meeting.

County development through co-operative effort of the rural and urban interests was discussed at the meeting of the Farm Bureau directors in the court house Tuesday night.

J. A. Craig, director at large, urged the adoption of a program whereby the farmers and the city men could come together, both with equal rights, and promote county prosperity through better agriculture markets, improved business relationships and the selling of local products.

"The very biggest proposition any Chamber of Commerce or any other civic organization can do is to boost a county development program," said Mr. Craig. "By concentrating our efforts on a program like this we can get somewhere and accomplish good."

Oscar Neison, newly elected president of the Janesville Chamber of Commerce, was present at the meeting.

At the meeting pledges full cooperation to help in agricultural development in a practical way. It was proposed that the farmers meet with the city committees, having both on equal standing, for conferences.

At the next meeting of the executive board of the Farm Bureau it is anticipated that the announcement will be made that no strike would be called, and the failure of clerks, station employees and freight handlers on the Norfolk and Western to respond to an official authorization of a strike.

The B. & O. and the Erie sent some of their rolling stock to outside shops for repair. Fifty-four

Competition Is Keen at Camp

As the second period of the Rotaract camp draws to a close, interest and competition in the various camp events is increasing, according to letters received from the 41 Janesville boys at the Rotary club camp.

The boys have been assigned to six different tents and are graded according to the records made by each group. Each tent is marked for neatness, table manners and taste, having the best average at the conclusion of each meal, thus keeping competition high.

On Saturday night the boys had a treasure hunt. As soon as it was dark everybody started out in search of treasure consisting of peanuts and candy. The boys returned to camp about 10 o'clock.

Sunday both the Catholic and Protestant services went to church. At noon a solemn dinner was served. About 20 visitors were guests and many had picnics nearby.

Nearly Through
With Pea Crop

That the pea crop this year is 50 percent under normal was the statement made Tuesday by Claudio E. Aiken of the P. Hohenadel Jr. Canning company.

Mr. Aiken said about 600 acres of pea were canned during the season and that although the quality was excellent the yield per acre was about half of normal. He attributes the decrease to the lack of rain.

The pea canning season is practically completed, according to Mr. Aiken. A small amount of work remains to be completed yet, but is expected to be finished Thursday the last of the crop will be canned. Work will then be started in preparation for the corn season which will open around the first of August and continue about a month. The corn yield this year is expected to be normal.

CITY AND COUNTY
MUST COOPERATE

Meet With Equal Rights, Urges

J. A. Craig at R. B.
Meeting.

County development through co-operative effort of the rural and urban interests was discussed at the meeting of the Farm Bureau directors in the court house Tuesday night.

J. A. Craig, director at large, urged the adoption of a program whereby the farmers and the city men could come together, both with equal rights, and promote county prosperity through better agriculture markets, improved business relationships and the selling of local products.

"The very biggest proposition any Chamber of Commerce or any other civic organization can do is to boost a county development program," said Mr. Craig. "By concentrating our efforts on a program like this we can get somewhere and accomplish good."

Oscar Neison, newly elected president of the Janesville Chamber of Commerce, was present at the meeting.

At the meeting pledges full cooperation to help in agricultural development in a practical way. It was proposed that the farmers meet with the city committees, having both on equal standing, for conferences.

At the next meeting of the executive board of the Farm Bureau it is anticipated that the announcement will be made that no strike would be called, and the failure of clerks, station employees and freight handlers on the Norfolk and Western to respond to an official authorization of a strike.

The B. & O. and the Erie sent some of their rolling stock to outside shops for repair. Fifty-four trains were arranged by the N.W.B.

Rain stopped the athletic meet which was to have been held on Monday, this week.

In the tennis singles, Group A, Roland Sayre won second; in the doubles, Fred and Roger Burdick, Milton, won first; in the B class, Fred and Roger Burdick, won third; in the quots, singles, Ted Stillman, Milton, won first and Charles Agnew, Milton Junction, third; in the doubles, Stillman and Robert Davison, Milton, won first.

While the boys made no astounding records, and did not win notable places in the meets held, they all took an active part in the many events of camp life.

Reserve Board Appointment

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington—Bankers, business men and farmers in all sections of the United States are awaiting with almost breathless impatience to learn whether or not President Harding will reappoint W. P. G. Harding of Birmingham, Ala., as a member of the federal reserve board. The reason for this interest is that the act of reappointing Mr. Harding, or failing to do so, will indicate what the policy of the federal reserve board for the next few years is likely to be.

It is seldom that the appointment of one official occupies such a key position in relation to a broad national policy. The reason is that Governor Harding stands for a definite credit policy and that factions which are opposing his reappointment stand for an opposite policy. Governor Harding's term expires on August 10 and so far the President has declared that he has not yet taken up the matter. It is known that bankers and business men have written him urging that he name Mr. Harding and that agricultural interests have written him opposing the reappointment of the Alabama banker.

The issue is one of unlimited currency issues and extensive credit for farmers versus restricted currency held absolutely to the gold standard and restricted credits. The farmers want the former and Governor Harding stands for the latter.

The events which brought the issue before the American people are familiar to most citizens but have been presented under the color of the opposing prejudices. There has been bitterness between the factions which on some occasions has led almost to blows on the floors of congress and in committee rooms.

SETTLING THE COAL STRIKE

It has been apparent for the past two weeks that there was no possibility of settling the strike of the miners in the coal fields if negotiations were left to the operators and the miners. There has been little secret that the operators intended to cease cutting coal just so long as they had to deal with unions in the central district. Also the miners seem to have concluded that there would be no return to work so long as they could be supported to find work in other channels, unless their demands were granted. In this we have a stupid labor situation, uneconomic, stubbornly unjust, in which the public is the sufferer and in the end will pay the piper.

We must have fuel. The habit of the public is to buy it when it is needed. Most of the coal customers cannot afford to store coal—most of them live so close up to the wage earned or the salary received that an investment in coal out of season is a hardship. Therefore coal becomes seasonal in the market but in the end the public pays the interest on the operators' investments in coal mined when there is little or no demand.

President Harding's plan is simple for the present. But the coal situation arises from time to time and usually from the same causes. We never really settle anything; we compromise and tide over a year or a month and then we have the same old trouble to meet and to face. It came 20 years ago when the anthracite strike was on in all bitterness and Roosevelt stepped between striker and operator. The Independent Operator finally got what he wanted in the partnership dissolution of railroads and mines. That settled nothing, as we can now see. Then during the war we had another threat which was averted by the Wilson commission. Arbitration, the most sensible plan in wage difficulties, is for the time being only. What we need is a settlement of the coal business, the readjustment of economic values in it and a definite manner of fixing wages and conditions so that the perennial difficulties and threats of fuel famine will not be recurring. It seems that this cannot be brought about by any method except government interference and statute. If only the miners and the operators were concerned it would be quite a different matter. But we have some 100 million people not at all concerned in coal mining who are more than academically interested. They have but one appeal and that is to the government of the United States. Therefore, we as citizens, are behind any steps which President Harding may take to settle the difficulties for the present and express the hope that he will not pass the difficulty along to another administration or his own later on.

Congress is killing a lot of time with its famous jaw bone which was so potent in the hands of Samson.

THE BERRY SEASON

Lives there a man with soul so dead, memory so paralyzed, task so far gone and appreciation dulled that he does not remember with joy the beginning of the berry season. Possibly so if he had to stand in the sun and pick them under the Cerebral eye of a grown-up who called him to time whenever he sampled the fruit. The red raspberries following the strawberry on the hill, the black ones growing in the more shady places, and then the long trip to the blueberry patches where there was always the thrilling possibility of meeting a rattle snake. Later on when mother wanted to add to the canned stores on the shelves you had to gather in the elderberries with basket full as the result of a few hours labor. "There was the happy days."

It may be that some appetites pine and demand the richer and more expensive fruits of the tropics, or the strange things from the Orient but as for the common lot of us we would not trade a wedge of blueberry pie for the pomegranates of Bagdad. Nor do we refer to the pie of the restaurant, with its heavy and soggy filling of flour or starch, but to the real unadulterated pie of the grandmothers. These are the things that add joy to living in the summer. Flies and bugs, hot weather, flood nor drought can take away the glory of the berry season and the smell of the kettle wherein something is being stewed down to reappear when winter is stark and bleak.

The public is getting badly jarred between the grinding stones of the coal and rail strike. It is a case of the public be damned.

What at first was an experiment and dangerous as well, has now become an established branch of the government service. We refer to the air mail which within the last year has passed beyond the experimental stage and taken its place as a part of the regular business of mail distribution. THE WAY OF EASE
Pleasure builds no lasting fame.
Youth, remember as you go,
Luxuries are sweet to claim
But they vanish with a blow;

Rest a little, as you must.
But beware the idler's fate;
Toll's a friend that you can trust
Rest will never make you great.

Not along the easy ways
Pride and joy of conquest grow,
Leisure has no word of praise
Or a medal to bestow.

Youth, beware the easy place.
Shun the charm of leisure's lure,
Meet life's hardships face to face
For the glories which endure.

Soft of hand and dust of brain
The youth becomes who dwelt at ease;
By toil, might and main,
Man must earn his victories.

THE TWELVE GREATEST WOMEN?

When the average man answered this question, he naturally put his wife's name down first, that is, if he was a wise man. He would not put down the name of his wife's mother, his wife's three sisters and three of his nieces. If there were three room girls on the list, he might mention Mary Garden or Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, or Madame Adams and then submit the list to his wife for revision before rushing into print with it.

The bachelor, of course, labored under no such restrictions. He was a free lance and could let his imagination run from the sublime to the ridiculous. In the main though, it is believed the bachelor lists were the more interesting and snappy. They could go as far as they liked with the moving picture stars and actresses.

The average bachelor list read, "Ethel Barrymore, Dorothy Lamour, Doris Kenyon, Marlyn Miller, Bebe Daniels, Agnes Ayres, Shirley MacLean, Enid Bennett, Constance Talmadge, Franklin Laramore, Mary Hay and Irene Bordoni."

The list of greatest women submitted by women was greatly revised, erased, patched out and smudged, with many substitutions made. The women themselves seemed to have some difficulty in picking up their minds. Some of the lists had been worked over until they were hardly recognizable. It was noted that very few good-looking women were included in the lists of greatest women submitted by women.

The matter is still in doubt. The identity of the twelve greatest women in this country will never be revealed. Maybe the twelve greatest women are staying quietly at home bringing up their families right who knows? Those are the ones we never hear about.

Who's Who Today

DR. CHARLES P. STEINMETZ

The recent nomination of Dr. Charles P. Steinmetz, noted electrical wizard, for New York state engineer and surveyor by the socialists of that state takes the noted inventor from scientific to the political field temporarily.

Dr. Steinmetz has been a prominent socialist most of his life. In fact he started out in life as editor of a socialist paper in Breslau, Germany, and was driven out of that country by the police because of his radical utterances.

From Switzerland he sent contributions to the socialist papers. He continued to take an active part in his party's movement even after coming to the United States to win fame as an inventive and electrical genius.

In addition to his practical labor as a consulting engineer he has conducted a wide range of investigations in physics, chemistry and mathematics. He has also served as a college professor.

He has written many books on electrical and engineering subjects.

Steinmetz' other looms all the more remarkable when his physical frailty, which would have deterred many others, is considered.

LOOKING BACKWARD

FORTY YEARS AGO

July 12, 1882.—Prof. Robert Burton, who has been superintendent here for the past eight years and who has done excellent work, has had a position offered him as head of the Oshkosh Normal school. He has not yet decided to accept it, however, and may return here.—Tom Morrissey, one of Janesville's ball losers, left this morning for Chicago, where he will join the Detroit team.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

July 12, 1892.—County Clerk Croft has received the crop returns for the year 1891, which show that the crops of last year were unusually good. The chief products of the county are wheat, corn, oats, rye, barley, fruits, vegetables, hay, cheese, and butter.—One of the big races of the next week here will be the one on Wednesday for a $2500 purse.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

July 12, 1902.—Next Tuesday night at the Myers Opera house, the members of the Interurban Athletic association will give the second of a series of boxing and wrestling events.—Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Seales have a night-blooming primrose at their home which is being seen nightly by a large number of people.

TEN YEARS AGO

July 12, 1912.—Major Fathers has returned from Oshkosh where he investigated the working of the new commission form of government there.—Because of low water in Rock River, only half the power is being generated at present. The steam engines are running practically all the time.—Warm weather in June retarded the crops, but the recent rains have helped them.

ERUPTIONS DUE TO POISONOUS PLANTS

Skin inflammation or dermatitis, as doctors call it, may be produced by contact with various substances of animal, vegetable or chemical nature. It is characterized by redness, swelling, little vesicles of water blisters, and sensations of itching, burning or pain.

The dermatitis caused by poison ivy (thus toxicodendron) is well known and the ivy itself is not well known. The ivy leaf is trifoliate—that is, consists of three separate leaves on the stem, not a single leaf in three parts.

Other plants which may cause dermatitis are the poison sumac, the nettle, the smartweed, cowhage, and several members of the primrose family.

Primrose eruption is not rarely seen on the hands of women who grow a primrose in a jar in the house, and is usually taken for "eczema." It is far less severe than poison ivy eruption, consisting of a more or less persistent fine vesicular rash with itching, chiefly between the fingers, sometimes about the ankles and neck. The eruption will occur shortly without apparent cause, as long as the primrose is kept.

As for poison ivy, a susceptible person should smear the exposed parts of skin with vaseline before approaching a known growth of ivy. He should immediately bathe the exposed skin with soap and water following any possible exposure, then mop it with pledges of cotton wet with alcohol, in order to dissolve off any of the volatile essence of the ivy which may be on the skin. More as a preventative than for the skin eruption, calamine lotion, with or without a small proportion of carbolic acid, is grateful: Glycerin..... ¼ ounce
Powdered calamine..... ½ ounce
Borax..... ¼ ounce
Lime water, enough to make eight ounces.

When itching is intense, pure carbolic acid may be added to the lotion in any quantity up to ½ per cent.

CHRONIC APPENDITIS

Is it advisable to remove the appendix in a case of chronic appendicitis without a clear history of previous acute appendicitis?

Answer—Perhaps. A diagnosis of chronic appendicitis without a clear history of previous acute appendicitis must always be taken tentatively, and the operation must always be undertaken as an exploratory operation for the patient cannot be absolutely sure of the nevertheless symptoms like yours often warrant an exploratory operation. That is, I had such symptoms myself, but only after undergoing the exploratory operation, because I think it is safer than the disease.

At the Villa Rose

BY A. E. W. MASON

SYNOPSIS OF VILLA ROSE. Celia Dauvrey is companion to Mme. Daury, Wethermill at Alex. Ricardo, adventurer, sees Cello play at Casino. Alex. Ricardo had met Cello. Wethermill rushes to him with the news of the murder of Mme. Daury. Cello has been killed. Wethermill begs Ricardo to aid him in tracing the young woman. Hanaud, a detective, is engaged. He makes a call and discovers the facts which are supposed to have been taken hidden in the floor of Mme. Dauvrey's room. Cello arrives and dies in the chair. Ricardo is shown having been killed by Cello. Ricardo is believed to have been one of the conspirators in the scheme to steal diamonds belonging to Mme. Dauvrey when taken away and Cello was known to have worn the ring. Ricardo advertises for information. He receives an answer from Martha Cobin at Geneva and she is on her way to Alex. Ricardo and dies in the chair. Ricardo is shown to have been killed by Cello. Ricardo is held prisoner and about to be killed, Cello is rescued. Hanaud announces to the astonished Ricardo that Harry Wethermill has been sent for the murder of Mme. Dauvrey and Martha Cobin.

"But it was not so. He was afraid—very afraid—not for Mme. Cello, but for himself. He was afraid that he had understood what those cushions had to tell me."

"What did they tell you?" asked Ricardo.

"You know now," said Hanaud. "They were two cushions, both indented, and indented in different ways. The one at the head was regularly indented; something shaped and pressed upon it must have been a face—it might not, and it there was a little brown stain on it which was fresh and which was blood."

The second cushion had two separate impressions, and between them the cushion was forced up in a thin ridge; and these impressions were more definite. I measured the distance between the two cushions and I found this: that supposing—and it was a large supposition—the cushions had been moved since those impressions were made, a girl of Mme. Cello's height lying stretched out upon the sofa would have her face pressing down upon one cushion and her feet and insteps upon the other.

"Now, the impressions upon the second cushion and the thin ridge between them were just the impressions which might have been made by a pair of shoes held close together. But that would not be a natural attitude for any one, and the mark upon the head cushion was very deep."

Supposing that my conjectures were right, then a woman would only lie like that because she was helpless, because she had been 'tied' there, because she could not lift herself—because, in a word, her hands were tied behind her back and her feet fastened together. (To Be Continued.)

Dinner Stories

The foreman of building operation turned to the superintendent.

"That end has fallen down!" he shouted.

"What!" exclaimed the superintendent.

"Was there a cyclone?"

"No," said the foreman, "but that foolish boy Flanagan had 'em take down the scaffolding before we got the wallpaper up."

An active churchman attends church services regularly, taking his young son with him. Usually the youngster stands the strain and makes no trouble. But on a recent Sunday the minister was waxing eloquent. "Let us take the case from the beginning. When you first came to me, as I told you, the Commissioners had already been with me. There was an interesting piece of evidence already in his possession. Adolph Ruel—who saw Wethermill and Vaquier together close by the Villa and overheard that cry of Wethermill's. It is true; I must have known!"—had already been with his story to the Commissioners.

"I knew it when Harry Wethermill came into the room to ask me to take up the case. That was a bold stroke, my friend. The chances were a hundred to one that I should not interest my holiday to take up a case because of your little dinner party in London. Indeed, I should not have interrupted it had I not known Adolph Ruel's story."

"As it was I could not resist Wethermill's very suddenly charmed me. Oh, yes, I felt that I must pit myself against him. So few criminals have spirit. Mr. Ricardo. It is deplorable how few. By Wethermill! See in how a dead position he would have been if only I had refused to call upon the first detective in France. And his argument. He loved Mme. Cello. Therefore she must be innocent. Now he stuck to it. People would have said, 'Love is blind, and all the more they would have suspected Mme. Cello. Yes, but they love the blind lover.' Therefore, the more would it have been impossible for them to believe Harry Wethermill had any share in that grim crime."

Mr. Ricardo drew his chair closer to the table.

"I will confess to you," he said, "that I thought Mme. Cello was an accomplice."

"It is not surprising," said Hanaud. "Someone within the house was an accomplice—we start with that fact. The house had not been broken into. There was Mme. Cello's record, as Helena Vaquier gave it to us, and a record, obviously true."

"There was the fact that she had got rid of Servetta. There was the maid upstairs very ill from the chloroform. What more likely than that Mme. Cello had arranged a seance, and then when the lights were out had admitted the murderer through that convenient glass door!"

"There were, besides the definite imprint of her shoes," said Mr. Ricardo.

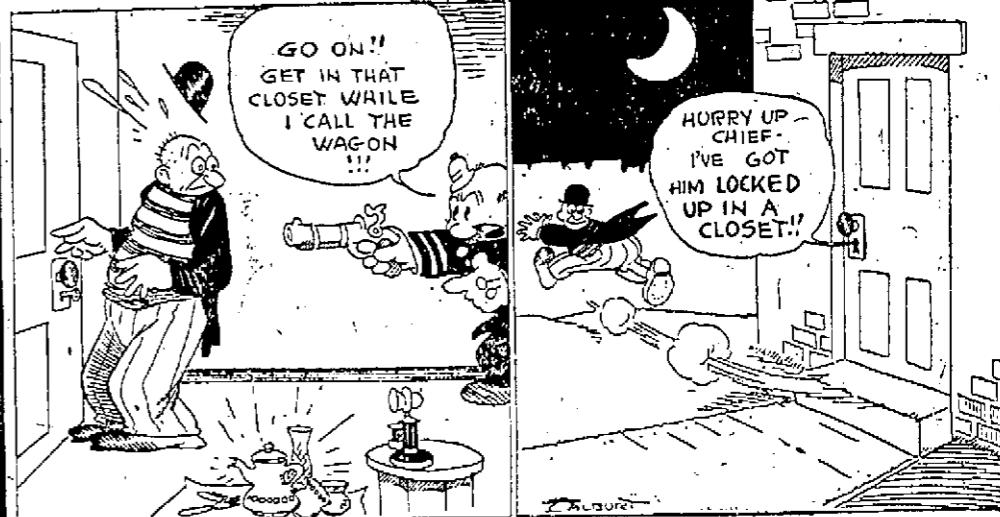

"Yes, but that is precisely where I began to feel sure that she was innocent," replied Hanaud dryly. "All the other footmarks had been so carefully scored and ploughed up that nothing could be made of them. Yet there little ones remained so definite, so easily identified, and I began to wonder why these, too, had not been cut up and stamped over. The murderers had taken you to see an excess of precaution to throw the presumption of guilt upon Mme. Cello rather than upon Vaquier."

"However, the footprints were Mme. Cello had sprung from the room as I described to Wethermill. But I was puzzled. Then in the room I found the torn-up sheet

As his voice rose in power and volume, he made the raffors ring with the question: "I ask you what shall be the future glory of the church?"

The young hopeful turned to his father and said: "You tell him, daddy, and let's go."

"MAKES TABLE TALK BRIGHT."

THE MAGIC CUTS

Take two small tin cans, such as are used for baking powder, that have the bottoms sanded off a quarter of an inch. On the bottoms cover some blue glue and completely cover it with bird seed or similar cereal.

Do not display these prepared bottoms to the audience. The cups should first appear empty.

Dip one of the cups into a bag filled with the same cereal you have used in the preparation. Appeal to the audience to stand covered with water for an hour or more—overcoat does no harm. Drain off this liquid, bring to a boil, and can or bottle. Sweetened and diluted it furnishes a delightful drink, by adding other fruit juices makes the foundation of fruit punch. The best thing about this discovery is that the audience themselves are far better for having the water stand on them awhile. They are not as sour with sour taste.

Stewed Cherry Pudding—Separate two eggs. Beat yolks, add one cup milk, one-half teaspoon salt, one tablespoon melted butter, and two cups flour sifted with two teaspoons baking powder. Beat all together, fold in beaten egg whites and one pint cherries. Steam one hour. Serve hot with cherry sauce.

Cherry Sauce—Two tablespoons flour, one cup sugar, one cup boiling water. Boil one minute and pour into one well beaten egg. Beat and add one cup of cherry juice. This will serve six persons.

Baked Cherry Pudding—One-half cup sugar, one tablespoon butter, two-thirds cup sweet milk, two level teaspoons baking powder, flour enough to make batter like cake.

SEASONABLE RECIPES

Rhubarb Pudding—Cream one-fourth cup of butter with one cup of sugar. Add one cup of crushed and sweetened raspberries and four eggs beaten separately. Beat stiff pasta and fill a buttered baking dish in alternate layers with fresh bread crumbs. Cover with butter, mix with butter and bake for an hour in a moderate oven. Serve with any preferred sauce.

Rhubarb Jam—Wash and pick the berries, boil with a little water, mashing and scraping from the bottom as they simmer. When reduced to a thick pulp add one-half pound of sugar to each pound berries. Stew till very thick, scraping constantly from the bottom. Cool in a large bowl, then put in a glass jar with screw top.

Honey Drink—This is a beverage much liked in country regions in England. To make it, put a pound of honey in a double boiler over the fire and let remain there, with the heat not very high, until it is quite thin. If the heat is very high the honey loses some of its characteristics when it is thin.

Fruit Wine—Add one canned fruit to the white of eggs, beaten stiff and slightly sweetened. Flavor with lemon juice, and serve in long-stemmed glasses.

Fruit Drink—Seed cherries, and let stand covered with water for an hour or more—overnight does no harm. Drain off this liquid, bring to a boil, and can or bottle. Sweetened and diluted it furnishes a delightful drink, by adding other fruit juices makes the foundation of fruit punch. The best thing about this discovery is that the audience themselves are far better for having the water stand on them awhile. They are not as sour with sour taste.

GRAINChicago Review.

Chicago.—Trading was limited to fresh purchases in the price of wheat Wednesday during early transactions. At first, however, the market was busier than usual because of the better outlook for settlement of the railroad strike. The subsequent rallies derived some of their impetus from reports of some damage to stock yards in Atlanta. The closing, which started from unchanged at $1.16, closed at $1.16, followed by a rise to above $1.16.

Seemingly increased prospect of a rail strike settlement did a good deal to turn wheat downward in price.

However, the market's success in profit-taking sales and slowness of export demand were contributing bearish factors. The close was unchaged at $1.16, but lower Sept. $1.15.

Many intermediate dealers who have sold wheat for shipment by July 20 were asking today for an extension of time. However, the market's success in profit-taking sales after prices had started downward.

Corn displayed independent firmness owing to gossip that export demand would be stepped up to 2½ advance, with Sept. 20 $1.64. This soon succeeded by moderate general gains.

Wheat prices underwent a material rise. Corn closed weak, 20¢/M. net lower with Sept. 20.

Oats started off 40¢/M. on Sept. 20.

Higher quotations on hogs lifted provisions.

WEDNESDAY,

Beloit Golfers Here for Second Clash of the Season

Copyright 1920 by Geo. McManus

COURSE IN GOOD SHAPE AFTER THE HEAVY RAINFALL

Janesville and Beloit golfers crash on the Monroe Avenue links Wednesday afternoon. The Gateway city will bring 25 here.

Early in the season, the local wielders of the iron and wood called upon the Beloit County club and lost 50 to 34. Since then the Boer City has taken Madison in a sweep, 62 to 38. With this confidence and the desire to even the season with the Line city, at this time is expected at the city limits grounds.

Dave Tosh, the local pro, will meet A. H. Addie of Beloit for the second time of the year. In the previous contest, Tosh lost a hard match, 1 down.

The rains of the past few days have been exceedingly welcome at the County club. The greens and course are in good shape for Wednesday's intercity match.

Dave Tosh, the local pro, will play in the Wisconsin Professional Golfers' Association meet at Oconomowoc July 22 and 24, he announced Tuesday. This will be his first Badger appearance since coming to Janesville this season. He may get a chance to meet Dave Wilson of the Blue Mound Country Club, Milwaukee, who comes from the same town in Scotland. It is probable that Ned Alliss and Munro Hunter, Milwaukee pros will also play.

Tennis Club Prepares Long String of Games

Matches with out-of-town clubs are now being arranged for the remaining week ends of the season. The games committed of the Janesville "T" Tennis Club which you can see the local inquisitors among our competition. Invitations have been extended to Stoughton, Rockford, Watertown, and Whitewater Tennis players.

It is planned to have matches with Stoughton, Rockford and Watertown both on their grounds and at the Janesville Y. M. C. A. courts. A schedule will probably be announced within the next week. The match at Madison, where the local players lost 4-2, demonstrated that there is a great interest in playing local and out-of-town players with whose game one is not acquainted. It will put the Janesville club's top notchers in excellent shape for the state tournament at Milwaukee.

Improvement with additional practice has been shown in the men playing this year. George Bannister, who is the best University of Wisconsin player member of the varsity squad, was the only Janesville entrant last year to show any class in the semi-finals in the competition in the singles.

A meeting of the tennis club may be called this week to stir up interest in a mid-season tournament which has been contemplated.

Busy Man's Sport Page

JOE LYNNCH says he likes his raised crown of banian champion, but he wants the world to know that while he has something heavier on his dome his pockets are lighter. For the first time in the history of the American ring, a fighter won without making any jack. In fact, according to the guarantees of $30,000 to Buff, Joe must cough up $1,150.35—the shortage due to poor attendance. ON ONE occasion when the late "Tiny" Maxwell was refereeing a game, he invented the stunt of borrowing yards. One of the teams was backed on its goal line and wanted to punt but the fence was only six yards behind the goal line, no room for the kick. Tiny induced the captain of the other to loan him a string of eleven yards to be paid back later. This was forgotten until the leading team had the ball on the other squad's nine-yard line. The captain claimed a touchdown and it took all of Tiny's persuasiveness, so the yard unwilling, to talk the athletes into waiting for a more logical time for repayment.

"PRENTY" GRIFFITH of the Washington Americans believes in giving credit with a raise in pay. Last week J. Benson Bellheart, a youngster obtained from Greenville, stopped the Tygers and registered his initial hit in the majors. Bellheart has $100 a month added to his pay and was placed on the regulars.

"MY word, what an unorthodox manner of sealing! That's what the bally Britishers said when they first dropped their eggs on Herbert's own practice in the Thames. But Hoover vanquished the field and came home with the title. It is the old story of Americans doing things differently and telling the world to go hang with its customs.

A CITY tennis tournament today is a probability for Janesville this summer. This will be in addition and supplement to the usual playground meet. The completion of the third court at the Y. M. C. A. grounds will make this a real treat for the fans.

Report has it that Molla's husband has a great interest in playing local and out-of-town players with whose game one is not acquainted. It will put the Janesville club's top notchers in excellent shape for the state tournament at Milwaukee.

Perspiring bounds! Weismuller has another, the 500 meter mark.

Miss Elizabeth Ryan, California paired with Suzanne Langton, wins way to Wimbledon doubles finals.

Night Talk—Teas Willard offered Labor day match with Billy Miske at Oklahoma City or a choice of Fred Fulton, Bob Martin, Bob Reiner or Tommy Gibbons—Joe Burman and Mike Dundee ready to sign. John Dundee signs to meet Danny Brush in Brooklyn Aug. 14.

Fryne will send her tennis team to America to meet Australia in preliminary competition for Davis cup.

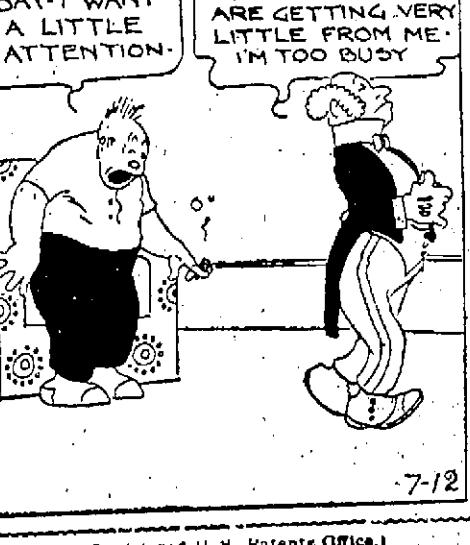

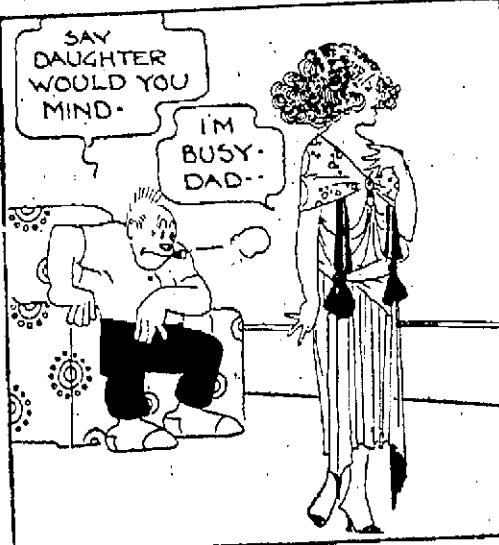

Trans-Mississippi golf meet contenders settled into elimination rounds with Rudolph Knepper, Sioux City, Ia., given best chance.

Tuesday's grand circuit races at Fort Miami called off on account of rain.

Misses Jessie Grieve and Grace Mangen, Los Angeles, start eastward for national tennis meet.
